

Clarisa Pop

University of Belize

ENGL0090

September 11th, 2022

Paragraph Outline

Title: Racheal

Topic Sentence: Based on the short story “Eleven” by Sandra Cisneros Racheal can be described shy, childish, intelligent.

Supporting detail 1 with examples and explanations: First of all, Rachel is shy because when Mrs. Price asked for who the red sweater was, she could barely make a sound. Throughout the story you could notice that Rachel talks to herself in her mind instead of saying it out loud.

Supporting detail 2 with example and explanations: secondly, she acted childish compared to being eleven years old. She cries ‘like she is three years old in front of everybody. She didn’t want to be eleven years old. She still wanted to sit in her mother’s lap like she was five.

Supporting detail 3 with example and explanations: on the other hand, Rachel is a very intelligent little girl. She said growing old is like ‘kind of like an onion or like the rings inside a tree trunk’ or ‘like my little wooden dolls that fit inside the other, each year inside the next one. She has an aspect of viewing how she was getting older by comparing it to her everyday life.

Conclusion: In conclusion, I would say that Rachel is just a little girl going through different feelings and mood. She wanted to remain young or be older every time

Racheal

Based on the short story “Eleven” by Sandra Cisneros Racheal can be described shy, childish, intelligent. First of all, Rachel is shy because when Mrs. Price asked for who the red sweater was, she could barely make a sound. Throughout the story you could notice that Rachel talks to herself in her mind instead of saying it out loud. secondly, she acted childish compared to being eleven years old. She cries ‘like she is three years old in front of everybody. She still wanted to sit in her mother’s lap like she was five. on the other hand, Rachel is a very intelligent little girl. She said growing old is like ‘kind of like an onion or like the rings inside a tree trunk’ or ‘like my little wooden dolls that fit inside the other, each year inside the next one. She has an aspect of viewing how she was getting older by comparing it to her everyday life. In conclusion, I would say that Rachel is just a little girl going through different feelings and mood. She wanted to remain young or be older every time.